BLAMES HIS SURGEON

Mickey Rourke, 57, confesses he had work done to his face to correct injuries he suffered as a boxer, but "he went to the wrong guy." Board-certified plastic surgeon Dr. Matthew Schulman believes the star had a face-lift and eyelid surgery. "His changes are dramatic and make him look very different," he notes.

THE UGLY

THEN NOW

SHE LOOKS LIKE A DIFFERENT PERSON

Rose McGowan reveals she initially went under the knife to repair damage done to her face after a terrible car accident. "My glasses had sliced me under my eye," explains the 36-year-old star. Unfortunately, the procedures have left Rose barely recognizable! "Her eyes now have a different shape, likely from eyelid surgery," notes Dr. Schulman. "The irony is that she actually appears older in her after photos because her eyes look more aged." He also suspects Rose may have gotten fillers in her cheeks since they're much fuller and rounder. To top it all off, Dr. Schulman thinks she probably had Botox or Dysport injections around her eyebrows to create that overly dramatic arch by her mouth to get rid of wrinkles.

NOSE

Too much plastic surgery has left Lil' Kim, 35, looking extremely unnatural, in Dr. Schulman's opinion. "It appears she has had fillers injected into her cheeks and lips as well as an eyelid surgery but the real issue is her apparent nose job," he explains.

DRAMATICALLY LIGHTER SKIN

Former baseball star Sammy Sosa, 41, credits a cream for lightening his skin. "It's a bleaching cream that I apply before going to bed and it whitens my skin some," he says. But Dr. Schulman thinks a topical cream can't produce this dramatic change. "He probably had laser resurfacing or a strong chemical peel."

Dr. Matthew Schulman (drschulmanplasticsurgery.com) is a board-certified plastic surgeon and Assistant Clinical Professor of Plastic Surgery at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine. He does not treat any of these stars and formed his opinions after viewing photos of the celebrities.
