

LOHAN PLASTIC SURGERY OUT OF CONTROL!

- EXPERTS

TROUBLED Lindsay Lohan showed up at pal Kim Kardashian's wedding with a cartoonish new look: laughable chipmunk cheeks and Donald Duck lips!

In fact, the Mean Girl's distorted face nearly stole the spotlight from the bride on her big day with her barely there plunging neckline that left little to the imagination and shocking plastic surgery at the tender age of 25, say experts.

"Lindsay looks like a 50-year-old 'Real Housewife' trying to look 20," blasts Dr. Anthony Youn, a board-certified cosmetic surgeon from Troy, Mich., who has not treated Lohan. "Her face has been plumped up beyond all recognition.

"She's out of control."

And noted New York-based plastic surgeon Dr. Matthew Schulman, who studied photos of the actress, points out: "Lindsay is no stranger to fillers and it looks like she's done it again. Her lips are fuller to the point of being swollen. This was probably the result of overzealous injections of Restylane or Juvederm. Her cheeks are also noticeably fuller. Again, fillers can be the culprit. Her treatments likely cost around $3,000."

This isn't the first time Lohan has opted for puzzling beauty help. She was just 18 when she showed up sporting a "bee-sting" pout at an April 2005 New York City wrap party for her film Just My Luck, indicating she may have had Restylane treatments, experts said at the time.

Last year, despite her thin-lipped earlier photos and doctors' opinions that suggested otherwise, beleaguered Lohan was claiming her larger lips were all-natural and not the result of Juvederm, the "in-crowd" filler that lasts up to a year compared to three to six months for collagen.

But sources say the former child star - who finished her house arrest in June and is now on probation on misdemeanor theft charges - might require the help of a head doctor and not a cosmetic miracle worker.

"Her face has been plumped up beyond all recognition," says Youn. "She's a very pretty girl so when young people like Lindsay get these types of treatments, there's reason for concern.

"She really needs a psychiatrist, not a plastic surgeon!"

The cosmetic expert estimates Lohan's inflated mug resulted from two vials of filler in her lips and three vials in each cheek, at a cost of $600 a pop.

"Her face looks like a Cabbage Patch Doll version of herself," Youn says.

"Either she's been injected really recently and is still swollen or her plastic surgeon overdid her treatment.

"Hopefully it's just recent and everything will settle down. She really needs to see a therapist for her image issues."
